"On memorizing the past" — by F.B. Carroll.

"Died at her home in Louisville City, Kentucky, on the 21st September, Mrs. Fannie Barnett, wife of Dr. W.S. Barnett in the 34th year of her life.

"It is with much more than ordinary interest, and a feeling of deep personal loss, that I chronicle the death of this Christian woman. From her early womanhood, and while she was yet at school, I remember her among my friends. During my postriot in Cynthiana, Ky., her father's house was the home of her visit, and during the time that I was very near her health was then living — a noble Christian woman. The mother of her children filled her home with all the brightness and cheerfulness of Christian woman's kind."

"On the 9th day of September, 1869, just before leaving my new home to pay a visit to Parkersburg, W. Va., I invited her to come with me. W. S. Barnett. I shall never forget with what joy I promised, the bride — grown in that September morning began the journey of life together.

Dr. Barnett was young and well qualified for his profession; his chosen wife was a most educated Christian woman. Of my noble qualities, I never had such a woman as in this truest sense.

Dear Dr. Miller:

I guess you think I've forgotten that I promised to send you those papers by the first of Oct. when I moved into my own home but didn't get possession of my house as I expected to with running straigntening. I pictured it family has finished out the month.
I do wish try & get this off in the A.M. mail.
Only hope any delay
hasn't hurt you not any.
Now asked if there
was a portrait of Mother Barnett? Yes
I have one uncle John
said he never thought time good. Was
The portrait was made soon after
she finished school
they thought.
Hope Pennsylvania & boy
are well. Remember them with love from me
Yours very kindly

Dear Dr. Miller:

Your letter came last Friday, and I was a bit

mountain mail was unident
ted with my brother's mail to the Country (and as moves usually do you know, carried it right in my pocket several days)

I am quite glad indeed.
to hear from you more. Have often wished we could have seen you all as we did last winter. Little Uncle John, Their visit was ever so nice to be forgotten in our family.

Thank you so much for your kind invitation to visit your home and would be equally as glad to have your family visit me. Do hope in the future we may meet. I know each other better. For there is nothing gives me more pleasure than to hear from you and know more of my husband's people
I have all packed in a trunk of lace's with a lot of keepakes that I treasure. And if you cannot that doing I will send you those notices in October.
