Rev. J. W. Hampton
Called to His Reward

THE WELL KNOWN MINISTER
AND ATTORNEY AT LAW
PASSES AWAY AT HOME
OF HIS DAUGHTER AT THOMAS W. VA.

It will be a great shock to the hundreds, yes, thousands of people in Kentucky and West Virginia to learn of the death of the Reverend John W. Hampton, which occurred at the home of his daughter, at Thomas, W. Va., last night.

The news of Rev. Hampton's death was conveyed to this section by telegram to his nephew, Judge W. A. Hampton, of Ashland, early this morning and it soon became known among the numerous friends of the man that he had passed away.

Rev. Hampton was nearly 70 years of age and had been devoted to the professions of the law and the ministry. He first studied law and was developing into one of the able attorneys at the Boyd county Bar. Sometime during the '40s he turned to the ministry, and converted, joined the M. E. Church, South, and was soon licensed to preach. He entered the ranks of the itinerants and about his first charge was Charleson, where he succeeded in erecting a new church and firmly planting his denomination in the capital city of West Virginia. After having served other charges he was made presiding elder and filled that capacity for several years. He was then appointed to the church in Huntington and was the pastor there when the Johnson Memorial church was dedicated.

Soon afterward he took a superintendency and later, he believe, that he was placed on the superannuated list.

At the West Va., conference session last fall he accepted the pastorate of the church at Buffalo and went to take charge of it, at his health having failed he went to reside with his daughter, Mrs. J. L. Miller, at whose home he died.

Rev. Hampton was a man of extraordinary talent, having been far above the medium both in the ministry and in the law as a practitioner, having been a law partner of Judge W. C. Ireland and the firm was regarded as one of the strongest in western Kentucky. His personality was an inspiration to all who knew him.

IT PAID TO INVESTIGATE
GAME OF LAND SHARK WAS

OFFICIAL OR A FARM
WORTH $1,750 INSTEAD OF
$1,750 AS REPRESENTED.

Portsmouth, O., Jan. 19.—It is an interesting little story of how a well known county official blocked the game of a land shark recently when a man named Howell from Portsmouth showed up at the court house and inquired of the official for information concerning a farm for which he was interested.

The "farm" had been represented by the land shark as being located three miles from this city and containing 100 acres, when as a matter of fact the land is situated nearly 30 miles out of the West Side, and its true value about $1,750, instead of $1,750 asked.

The prospective purchaser of the farm, it seems, on the point of closing the deal when he decided to do a little investigating and took the tram here with that result.

THE DEADLY CIGARETTE.

Dr. J. J. Kellogg had all the nicotine, taken from a cigarette, and made a solution of it. Half the quantity he injected into a healthy frog. The frog died almost instantly. The rest was given to another frog of the same kind, and died equally quick. "A boy who smokes twenty cigarettes a day has inhaled enough poison to kill forty frogs," says Dr. Kellogg. "Why does the poison not kill the boy? It does kill him. If not immediately, he will die sooner or later of weak heart, Bright's disease, or some other malady which scientific doctors now recognize as a result of the smoking and the time poisoning."—Exchange.

REV. J. W. HAMPTON
CALLED TO HIS REWARD

THE TRUNK HANDLES AND DOOR NOB FROZEN OFF—ONE MAN'S MEMORY TAKE DEPARTURE DURING LATE COLD SNAP.

Now that the cold weather spell has been broken, all cold weather stories are in order, and there are not a few of them that might nearly terrify the people of a much warmer latitude than that in which Cattlettsburg is located. Some of these stories are really startling, and there may be some incredulity published to the effect that it is just assuming to accept them as bona fide.

Of course it is not necessary to narrate the fact that about every house in the city had trouble with their plumbing during the hard freeze, for there were very few houses that failed to be flooded with water because of bursted pipes.

One story that may not be given credit for truth is to the effect, that the boys over a the C. and O. baggage room permitted the fire to go out on that cold Friday night and next morning when they went to load a big lot of trunks on the trucks they were astounded to discover that during the night the handles had all frozen off the trunks. It is a fact, said one of the boys, and we must admit that if it was ever old enough to do such thing that the cold Friday night was the time.

The freezing off of door knobs was a common occurrence, according to a well known man in town who never held membership in the Amaranth Club, who tells of other freaks performed by the cold.

One of the saddest results of all is said to have occurred in the line of the C. and O. where the subscription to a Cincinnati newspaper, having been cut off for a short while at a late hour of the night and had his "memorality" put away until it is said that it may never be of any material service to him again.

The agent for the said Cincinnati newspaper says he is inclined to give full credit to the story, because of the fact that the unfortunate man had promised him the day before that "if he was alive," he would pay that bill for subscription. The man is still alive.

The TRUNK HANDLES AND DOOR NOB FROZEN OFF—ONE MAN'S MEMORY TAKE DEPARTURE DURING LATE COLD SNAP.
Adjudgment, Resolution Defeated by Decisive Majority

Frankfort, Ky., Jan. 19.—What was looked upon as a test of strength in the fight to be waged in the House tomorrow against Representative Ben Niles' county unit extension bill was the vote yesterday given by Representative Harry J. Myers today to adjourn over until Monday at noon.

The moment the resolution was offered, Representative Harry Shoobber, of Woodford county, opposed it on the ground that the average cost per day to the States of a legislative session was $1,000, and that all who stood for economy should vote against the extension.

The resolution, it is said, was to delay action on the country unit extension bill. The resolution was defeated by a vote of 61 to 22. The House had previously adjourned until Monday at noon.

Among the first matters to be taken up at the House session tomorrow is Mr. Niles' bill, and it is rumored here tonight that a motion to re-consider it will be made. Friends of the measure say that nothing can be gained by that, however, as "wet" members of the House are hopefully in the minority.

The freezing off of door knobs was a common occurrence, according to a well known man in town who never held membership in the Amazin Club, who tells of many other freaks performed by the冷 locking system.

One of the saddest results of it all is said to have occurred in the north side of the city, when a subscription to a Cincinnati newspaper was caught out doors for a short while at a late hour of the night and had his "memorials" frozen until it is said that it may never be of any material service to him again.

The agent for the said Cincinnati newspaper says he is inclined to give full credit to the story, because of the fact that the unfortunates man had promised him the day before that he would pay that bill for subscription. The man is still alive and it is reported that the agent who can account for his delinquency is his memory must have been frozen until it failed to work. This hardly is to be believed, but there has never been a demand for an installation of an Amazin Club in Catlettsburg, because of the scarcity of its members and the people as a whole.

Many other stories of like character are amply sufficient to impress people of a milder climate with the fact that it was sure sold in Catlettsburg.

The environment of the statue is suited to its sublime purpose. The house of State in which he signed the sovereign laws representing a proud people's will; the statue to the veterans of the Mexican war; the glorious memorial in honor of the dead of his own unconquered army, the nearby figure of Washington, whom in character he so much resembles—these form a fitting association for the Imperial Hampton.

Officers at Fort Reno ordered to stay proceedings until Roosevelt is heard from.

The negro troops of the Twenty-fifth Infantry, long ordered mustered out, are still in service, and such a hula-luau has been raised about it that the case may be reopened. Secretary Taft has telegraphed to President Roosevelt asking what he shall do and the officers at Fort Reno have been ordered to stay proceedings until further instructions.

There is a widespread feeling throughout the war department that the real reason of the dismissal of these negro troops has been misunderstood. Few of them can say anything for publication and as it is well known, army officers do not permit themselves to be quoted, but Gen. Oliver, acting secretary of war, today made some remarks fraught with significance. He says not only have these troops, been guilty of shielding their comrades who committed an outrageous crime, but they have demonstrated that utter unfitness for the service. Said he: "It has been shown by the investigations made by the war department that the companies concerned are dangerous to have in the service. If, on account of feeling that they had a grievance, as was the case in Brownsville, the same companies participated in another disturbance of the same nature in a place to which they were transferred, what would the country say? It is impossible, both on account of safety and army discipline, to allow the men to retain their service."

Some members of the company organizations now ordered dismissed.

Mark Davis, a Negro, Probably Lynched Near Newberry.

Fired upon two white men when the officer was overpowered.

Special to The State.

Newberry, Nov. 19.—It is feared that Newberry county has been disgraced by an utterly inexcusable lynching. It is certain that a negro under arrest has disappeared. He was in the custody of the constable. He had captured him and was being brought to the Newberry jail when he was taken from the hands of the officer by a mob of masked men.

W. H. Hendrix, a white farmer of the Dornich settlement, about 11 miles from Newberry, was the renter from Will and Alf Dornch, white men, of a small piece of land.

A negro, Mark Davis, worked the land, on shares for Hendrix, who was afraid that he would not get his share of the corn if he left the measuring of it to the negro. He asked Davis to gather it and carry it to his (Hendrix) house for division. The negro became angry and declared that he would not gather the crop.

Rescued Their Comrade.

About noon on Saturday Will and Alf Dornch drove to the cornfield in a wagon to gather the corn. They found Davis in the field. The negro resisted their coming and fired at them with a single-barreled shotgun. The shot rattled on the wagon bed but neither of the Dornches was hit. They returned the fire and the negro ran away.

Later in the afternoon, Magistrate J. B. Birtch of Longs, upon the information of the Dornch's, issued a warrant for the arrest of Davis. Constable Xanoy Floyd, with a posse, went to the house of Davis and arrested him.
illness which ends the little sufferer's life is meant for her good as well as ours. Nor do they go be for their time. What more could have been done to spare the life of which I write? Physicians, friends, kindred did all, but God knew best. What a comfort it is that he did not leave it to chance, accident, not by some relentless stroke of fate, are our children taken away. Without our Heavenly Father they could not fall. And what a blessing it is that they die in the quiet of their recollections, and as we think of their spirits with Christ, and their bodies at rest in the grave, in the quiet of their recollections, we see them always in a vision of glory.

MEO QUIDEM ANIMO.

THEOLOGY teaches us, and truly, that our salvation is through no "merit" of our own, but solely through the grace of God, and through the merit of Christ, our Savior, which is the producing cause of salvation, and operated in the beginning by saving humanity from the penalty for sin. But the Individual Christian is taught that now salvation is brought by Christ's merit, his holiness is that by which he has removed us from our own holiness, no man shall see the Lord. Yet Christians in their prayers continually confounding a general theological statement, with present personal petitioning to God the merits of His Son, instead of the inclusion of the blessed and holy life in themselves. Shall we gain entrance to heaven at last, by confessing that we have no merit, nay, no purity or holiness of character? Think of this, and remember that the "perfect law of liberty" is the most exacting of all laws and by it we stand or fall in that day or in this.

"Jesus paid it all—all the debt I owe." Then it matters not how I may live, whether in sin or righteousness, the debt is paid and I shall be saved at last. The perfect obedience of Christ has saturated the atmosphere of Divine justice, and

"We thank Thee, that Thou hast not marked us according to our iniquities." Like a two-edged sword, He has cut off many of our sins. He does not punish for all of our sins, but for his Son's sake, overlooks, or at least regards with complacency our follies and shortcomings! And yet if we violate in one particular, we are guilty. He cannot look up on sin with the least degree of allowance; and the command is to "avoid even the appearance of evil." Our iniquities, i.e., the race as a whole, has suffered death, but God in His mercy provided a way, that He did not "mark" them as injustice without mercy would have demanded. But again, the remark is pertinent: Do not confound your theology with individual experience.

"Free from the law, O happy condition." So we sing, and so we think. But from what law? Surely not God's law. No man is exempted from a perfect obedience to that. We are under grace, it is true, but that grace puts us in a life controlled by the law of Christ Jesus. The law of the life of Christ Jesus is the same as the mind that was in Jesus. It can only consist in a perfect obedience; and so we are exhorted, "Be ye also perfect, even as He is perfect! There is no freedom from the law, and by grace through faith we have that freedom—the spirit of life working in us, to will and to do according to God's pleasure.

THE BAND OF HORSE.
Deported this life, at the residence of her father, Col. G. B. Holloman, of Seguin—Mrs. M. E. Hampton, wife of Wade M. Hampton. Born in Seguin, March 15th, 1850. Married 24th July, 1887. Died on 17th June 1875, aged 25 years, 3 months and 2 days.

There has passed from our midst one of our most lovely and valued women, unassuming and retiring in her nature, her excellency of character was only known to her immediate family and intimate friends. Rarely do we find so much simple purity of heart, and such wealth of love and affection combined in the same person. The duties of daughter, sister, wife, mother, and friend were discharged meekly, patiently and affectionately a degree to exceed the admiration and love of all. A little over two months before her death, being in delicate health, she gave birth to her fourth child. From that trial she never recovered. The skill of her Physician, the affectionate attention of her husband, and her father's family, and sympathizing friends were all in vain. Death had marked her for his own. On the 5th day after the death of her infant she yielded up her soul to the hands of that Savior, who had called her child to himself.

"She has gone to the grave! Were wrong to deplore her."

We have the comfortable hope, that she has gone to join her two infants which preceded her to the Heavenly home.

Always of a serious turn of mind, the subject of religion was one of frequent and profound consideration. In the early stage of her last illness, she expressed her purpose to a pious female friend, to unite herself with the church as soon as she should get well. When she gave up all hope of recovery, the Rev. Mr. Harris of the Methodist Church, was sent for to visit her. After a very satisfactory conversation respecting her religious views, and the foundation of hope for acceptance with God, she, solemnly avouching Christ as her Savior, was received into the Church by baptism. At the same time she consecrated her two remaining children to God in that ordinance. In a few hours after this solemn scene, in full consciousness of her situation, she quietly fell asleep in Jesus, whom she had avouched as her Lord and Redeemer.

"And I heard a voice from Heaven saying write, Blessed are the dead that die in the Lord from henceforth. Yes, saith the spirit, they rest from their labors, and their works do follow them."

A FRIEND.
Rev. William Hampton.

On Monday, July 25, quietly passed from labor to rest, the venerable Rev. William Hampton, one of the best known men in Eastern Kentucky.

Brother Hampton was born about six miles from this place, June 26, 1808. He connected himself with the Methodist Church when about twenty-one years of age, and soon thereafter was licensed as a local preacher, which position he filled with credit to himself and honor to the Church, until the feebleness consequent upon advancing years rendered such labor no longer possible.

As a preacher he was exceedingly practical, had a good command of language, and frequent bursts of impassioned eloquence rendered his sermons very attractive.

In appearance he was striking, commanding respect from all. Of medium size, regular build, dignified movement, venerable and patriarchal looks, he would have been selected even by a stranger as a man of note. His picture, herewith, is taken from the "History of the Big Sandy Valley," by Dr. Ely, and is a fair expression of his venerable and venerated face.

Rev. William Hampton.

As a citizen, brother Hampton was above reproach, for no more honorable or upright man ever lived in this place. He was the very soul of honor, and had the confidence of all who knew him. His word was as good as his bond, and when he made a statement that was the end of cavilling.

Brother Hampton was as true to the Church of his choice as the needle to the pole. But while he loved his own Church, he was the friend of all Christian people, and of every good cause and good work.

One incident in his life is worth repeating. At the close of the war a meeting was held in this place, to consider the question of building a Southern Methodist house of worship. There were just seven persons present, the writer being one of the number. After discussing the question for some time, a subscription book was opened, and it was decided to begin with the oldest and on to the youngest. Father Hampton being the oldest person present, the book was handed to him, and with a steady hand he wrote: William Hampton, $5.00. Following were the names of two who paid the amount each, and so by the example of brother Hampton that small company gave three thousand dollars, thus securing the building of our elegant church edifice in this place.

Brother Hampton raised a large family, part of whom have crossed over the river, the remainder are filling honorable stations in life. In this State and in the great Western Hampton worthily wears the mantle of his sainted father. He leaves also a devoted wife, and is sincerely mourned by hundreds of people.

He was born from his residence, Rev. J. A. Black and the writer conducting the service. The Masons performed their beautiful ceremony at the grave. Peace to his memory.

BUILDINGS TALK

In January of 1926, the Daily News featured articles on various topics including forest conservation and the state's financial situation. The article about forest conservation mentioned the purchase of lands in North Carolina to be used as a forest reserve. The financial section discussed the sale of railroad branches and the state's budget needs, with a focus on the need for additional revenue to support public works and services. The newspaper also reported on the death of a prominent judge and the legal matters facing his estate. The daily news included international updates, local events, and advertisements for local businesses. The layout and design of the newspaper reflect the typical format of newspapers from that era, with clear sections and headlines. The content is rich with historical context, providing insights into the economic and social conditions of the time.
Inquiry Made Regarding Position of State Upon Sale of Railway Branch

Daily News Bureau and Telegram Office Raleigh, Jan. 7.—North Carolina officials have given up all hope of saving the old Atlantic and North Carolina Railway line, which was abandoned last July by the Norfolk-Southern Railway Company. Governor Moses W. Causey has informed the legislature that the state is not in position to trade for the line.

During the past two years the state has been trying to save the line. It has purchased a number of the company's assets, including the right-of-way, for $1.5 million. However, Governor Causey has informed the legislature that the state is not in position to trade for the line. The legislature has been asked to consider other options for the line, including the possibility of selling it to a private company.

The state's attorney general has been asked to investigate the possibility of the state taking over the line. The governor has also requested that the legislature consider the possibility of selling the line to a private company.

Winter Weather Hits South

The Southern States Threatened by Disease Epidemic

Snow, Sleet and Rain Overlap Most of Southern Territory Even to Florida

Telegrams by Edward V. Murdock, Special Correspondent

Athens, Jan. 7.—(AP)—Winter unleashed its three most treacherous elements over the entire southern belt of the United States. Although the general trend was toward favorable weather, there were isolated areas where snow, sleet, and rain were expected.

The mountains and foothills of the eastern states were most affected, with snow falling as far as Georgia and North Carolina. The snowfall was heavy in some areas, with more than six inches reported in the mountainous regions.

Rainfall was heaviest in the southern states, with more than one inch reported in many areas. The rainfall was expected to continue through the weekend, with heavy showers expected in the late evening.

The combination of snow, sleet, and rain created hazardous driving conditions, with many roads closed to traffic. The state's transportation department was expected to close many roads in the early evening, as the weather was expected to worsen.
