J G Lyman Captured Through Woman's Aid to Sleuths

Special to The Dispatch

NEW YORK, Feb 25—That the capture of Dr J G Lyman, alias John H Putnam, the New York broker under arrest at St Petersburg, Fla, on a charge of using the United States mails to defraud customers out of investments estimated at from $400,000 to $700,000, was effected through the instrumentality of Miss Belle Hampton, a clever hotel stenographer at Richmond, Va, was made known by postoffice authorities today, following the prisoner's indictment by the Federal grand jury. Preparations were at once begun to bring Lyman back for trial.

Lyman was arrested as he was about to embark for an unknown destination on board a yacht he had chartered. He had come ashore to supply himself with newspapers, presumably with a view to keeping posted on the search for him.

My dear Mr. Miller,

A thousand apologies for my reminiscences and the delay with all inside ready to copy. When my second letter was received, I feel better as to not being acknowledged the first. I am perfectly delighted with the opportunity of getting a letter to you. I am very anxious for my children, but I am sure when the P.T.O. comes I shall write to you. I am very anxious to see you in the spring. I spent it at Christmas time.

We had a happy Christmas. I feel sure you would like the weather. We had snow beginning last week and it has been snowing ever since. I think it has been as long since I read the letter that I cannot make them all out, and will write another letter to the office. I send you my love and in the spring I shall write what I was.

Mr. J. L. Miller,

Dear Sir: I am reply to your Sept. 26th I enclose some of the information asked for.

I had a letter recently from my cousin, Mrs. Brown, of Va. and I sent to her the information I supposed she would forward to you, afterwards I found your address in her letter and concluded from that, that I was supposed to write directly to you. My life is very busy now and I have had

Of letter from different parties asking something concerning my family history. I have a cousin, who is making up the Hampton connection. Of course I am interested in anything concerning my entire name, but I have seen and know little, comparatively, of my Hampton and Byrum kin, outside of what I've been told by my mother and our cousin, Judge Byrum of Charlotte, who was now dead. I know nothing of my color or may still live in Va.

My grand mother, Thomas Hampton, had five brothers, William, Henry and John, John Dickin, Hannah, Phe, Sarah and Margaret.

Hannah married Jesse Allen of Hampton Town - Phe married Mr. Whitehead of Ohio - Sarah married Richard Allen of Hills Co. NC.

My grand mother was Elizabeth Carmichael, grand daughter of Gray Byrum of Edgecombe NC, and lived with him till she was married. Her father was Gray Byrum and married John Carmichael, the voice having their children, Allen, Elizabeth, and Margaret.
