

Notes concerning this collection: The CDs & Zip Drives were donated by the Department of Communications and Marketing, whose photographic unit was formerly known as Photographic Services. The inventory below was typed up to describe the contents of each disc, many of which had directories and subfolders.

The dates given are based on the dates attached to the images. If there were more than three dates then only the year is listed. Several of the dates may be the dates of when the CDs were burned rather than the dates of when the images were actually taken.

Also, some of the names and descriptions were either expanded up or revised to make the inventory easier to read and search. The spelling of some names were corrected or elaborated upon. Names were arranged as first name followed by last name for easier reading of this inventory.

Several of the image file formats are listed as "unidentified." Most likely these were Mac image or text file formats.

Also, the bulk of the JPGs (and even some of the TIFs) are saved at 300 dpi.

C&M image disc #549 – Tech Promo Film, 1947

(Footage discovered after someone placed the video on YouTube at https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=T3ZEEJ_4RkE; 5:08 minutes long). The December 4, 1948 issue of The Treador has an article on the front page about a Tech movie called "Futures Unlimited" in which Clint Formby serves as a narrator. This film on YouTube must be the same one as the $5000 one described in the Treador article, which was financed by the Tech Chamber of Commerce and the Student Council. At the 0:54 mark Formby states "born only in 1925, Tech has already left its babyhood and is in its years of adolescence. Before it are growth and progress, and before it lies its maturity... it's unlimited future."
